LA KIUVA - VALLE D'AOSTA la kiuva

Founded in 1975, this cooperative is located in Val d'Aosta, Italy's smallest region in the northwest of the peninsula. The winery brings together 60 local growers who cultivate 62 acres of vineyards, situated at elevations between 1200 and 1700 feet above sea level. As a small, boutique cooperative, it produces only 6,000 cases of wine annually, maintaining a focus on quality over quantity. The cooperative is dedicated to preserving the region's viticultural heritage, particularly by cultivating the indigenous Picotendro grape, a local clone of Nebbiolo.

With a strong commitment to honoring the land and the traditions of Val d'Aosta, this winery continues to produce wines that express the unique characteristics of its terroir and history.

BATASIOLO - PIEMONTE

Beni di Batasiolo is the story of the Dogliani family. The family has lived the world of wine for five generations in Italy's Langhe district, whose vineyards have contributed immensely to making Italian wines famous the world over. In these lands of oblique light and veiled mists, the Dogliani family has lived through the many changes in the recent history of these fields, which perhaps have seen more transformations in the last fifty years than over the centuries before. In 1978, the Dogliani family purchased the historic Kiola winery with its seven "beni," or "estate," in the internationally renowned zone for growing the celebrated Nebbiolo da Barolo grape.

Ceretto is a renowned wine producer in Piemonte, founded by Riccardo Ceretto in 1930. Celebrated for pioneering single-vineyard Barolo and Barbaresco, Ceretto focuses primarily on Nebbiolo, alongside Dolcetto, Barbera, Arneis, and Moscato. In the 1970s, the family expanded, establishing two wineries: Bricco Rocche in Barolo and Bricco Asili in Barbaresco. Named after key vineyards, these wineries produce exclusive “cru” wines, with the first vintage in 1982 from Bricco Rocche, highlighting each site’s terroir.

DAMILANO
BAROLO

Damilano is one of few traditional, ancient, ultra-centenary Barolo wine makers. In fact, the Damilano family has been active since 1890 when Giuseppe Borgogno, the great-grandfather of the current owners, started farming and making wine from the family- owned vineyard in Barolo (Cuneo), the town in the Langhe area that the homonymous wine was named after; a beautiful and generous land that has been the heart of the vocation to produce the “king of wines” for centuries.

LA SPINETTA - PIEMONTE

In 1977, the Rivetti family settled at La Spinetta (“top of the hill”) in Castagnole Lanze, in the heart of Moscato d’Asti. Believing Moscato had untapped potential, they pioneered the region’s first single-vineyard Moscato wines: Bricco Quaglia and Biancospino. Their ambition grew, and in 1985, La Spinetta produced its first red wine, Barbera d’Asti Cà di Pian, followed by acclaimed Barbaresco, Barolo, and other top-quality reds.

VILLA SPARINA - PIEMONTE

VILLA SPARINA

GAVI

Villa Sparina was purchased by the Moccagatta family in the late 1970s, long before Italian white wines gained global acclaim. The estate spans 70 hectares in the northern Gavi appellation, with clay marl and gravelly soils ideal for age-worthy, richly flavored wines. Vineyards lie at 250-300 meters altitude, benefiting from Mediterranean influence. Villa Sparina is also known for its signature bottle shape, inspired by an old bottle found in the estate’s historic cellar.

COLLAVINI - FRIULI

The Collavini story began in 1896 in Rivignano, where Eugenio Collavini supplied wine to Udine's noble families. His son Giovanni led the winery through both World Wars. Giovanni's son, Manlio, moved the winery to Corno di Rosazzo, introducing modern oenology and pioneering white Pinot Grigio. In 1971, he launched "Il Grigio" sparkling Pinot Grigio and later developed Ribolla Gialla sparkling wine. Today, Luigi and Giovanni Collavini continue the family legacy.

Leonardo in 1502 spent six months of his life in Romagna. Following his journey, 1502 Da Vinci in Romagna is the line dedicated to the wines of the best Romagna vineyards produced following the indications of the Metodo Leonardo. A special tour in five cities, which touches places full of beauty: the one that Leonardo captured in the drawings made at each stage of his journey and shown on the labels.

MICHELE SATTA - TOSCANA

In 1991 I planted my first vineyard with the awareness of wanting to produce a wine that could be faithful to the trail traced by Sassicaia and Ornellaia, but also to my personal vision and experience as a vineyard. Hence the need to combine Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot with the grapes that I thought could better express the Mediterranean terroir of Bolgheri: Sangiovese and Syrah.

POGGIO AL TESORO - TOSCANA

Planting at Poggio al Tesoro began in 2003, with varieties carefully selected to match each vineyard's soil and environment. Powerful grapes like Cabernet Sauvignon and Cabernet Franc thrive in sandy, stony soils, while clay- and mineral-rich plots are ideal for Merlot, producing elegant, full-flavoured wines. In Via Bolgherese, light tilling keeps soil cool and aerated; at Le Sondaie, cover crops manage vine vigour and optimize temperature and humidity.

TORREVENTO - PUGLIA

TORREVENTO

Torrevento’s story begins in the Alta Murgia National Park, where a 15th-century stone monastery gave its name to the estate. The winery’s roots trace back to 1913, when Francesco Liantonio’s grandfather left for New York seeking opportunity. Today, Torrevento remains deeply connected to its rugged Apulian landscape, focusing on native grape varieties that reflect the region’s true winemaking spirit and preserving the estate’s authentic, rural character.
